~We Say, “I love you so much”, Whereas God Says, “I love you this much.”

Growing up most of have heard our parents and close family members say, “I love you” or “I love you so much”. They normally show this through a hug, smile, kiss, or even maybe through a gift. However, there are the times when these words are said through tears and frustration. When a loved one is passing or when other hardships come at full force. Then we wonder do they love us, or do they really mean the words they say.

But praise God for the hope and reassurance we can feel through Him. A friend of mine shared her testimony recently and one of her points she mentioned that learned through her trials was that man will always fail us, but God will never and can never fail us.

Family and friends, both forms of relationships we have though our lives, leave and change sometimes for what seems good and sometimes for what seems bad. God however claims in his word that he will never leave nor forsake us.

“And the LORD, he it is that doth go before thee; he will be with thee, he will not fail thee, neither forsake thee: fear not, neither be dismayed.”

Deuteronomy 31:8 KJV

Though man will fail us and hurt us whether intentional or not God will always be there for us. For in and through God’s word we see and hear God say, “I love you THIS much.”

“For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.”

The amount of love and care for us that God displays through his actions in this verse is greater than we will ever be able to grasp. God said “Yes, they love you so much but I, I love you this much.” God willingly sent his Son to die for our sins, sins that he was incapable of committing, that we might be able to turn to him and receive and accept his loving care.

So, as we end this lengthy letter, remember that we are only human capable of only so much, and that when we say “I love you” it does not even compare to the amount of love God has for us.
